

SESSION FIVE | AMAZING

INTRODUCTION

At some point in your faith journey, you will settle into a bargaining posture with God. “God, if you will . . . , I promise I will” We all do it. That’s just part of religion—every religion. In fact, it’s so much a part of human nature that even some atheists and agnostics do it when they find themselves in desperate circumstances. But is that really how God wants us to relate to him? The problem with a bargaining posture is we never keep up our end of the bargain, do we?

VIDEO SUMMARY

- People often relate to God on a performance basis.
- God doesn’t want something from you. He wants something for you.
- Grace is unmerited favor.
- God’s acceptance of us isn’t based on something we do, but something he’s done.

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. Talk about a time when someone let you off the hook or forgave a debt. How did it make you feel?
2. How do bargaining-based Christianity and Grace-based Christianity look different?
3. How would you explain the concept of Grace to someone else?
4. Would you say grace has characterized your exposure to or experience with Christians? Why do you think that is?
5. Do you see yourself as a person who needs God’s grace? Why or why not?
6. In the message, Andy said, “God doesn’t negotiate because he doesn’t want something from you. He wants something for you.” Respond to that statement. If it’s true, how would it change the way you view God and your relationship with him?

MOVING FORWARD

The good news is we don’t have to bargain with God. Christians believe that God made the first move. Christians believe that God so loved the world he gave his one and only Son. When you receive that gift by faith, the bargaining ends and the relationship begins. Obedience to God is a voluntary response of gratitude for what he’s given you.
